Rapidly growing exports adding fuel to Saskatchewan's boom

We have what the world wants. Sales to countries such as China and Bangladesh are a key reason for the 'staggering' numbers, premier says

ROSS ROMANIUK
Metro in Regina

Saskatchewan's continuing boom has given the province another economic feather in its cap — a status as Canada's leading per-capita exporter.

Amid dramatically increasing sales of a range of products and resources to South America, Asia and the Middle East, figures released by Statistics Canada have put the province at the top of the country.

"We've seen, in the last 10 years, a tripling of our exports all over the world," Premier Brad Wall said on Wednesday at the legislature, citing a growth in exports of manufactured goods along with foods, fertilizers and energy.

"Saskatchewan is blessed right now to have what the world wants, and specifically to have what the fastest-growing economies in the world want."

Driving the local economy

"When we are exporting more goods, that means jobs here at home. That means the chance for businesses to create new opportunities for themselves and others." Premier Brad Wall

The numbers are what Wall described as "staggering," and point to a nearly $3-billion increase in yearly agricultural exports alone — to $11.2 billion — between 2010 and 2012.

The top five destinations for Saskatchewan goods and resources are the United States, China, Japan, Indonesia and Mexico.

Brian Olson is experiencing the export growth through his Fort Qu'Appelle agricultural implement company, PowerPin Inc., which sells 95 per cent of its tractor drawbar hitches to destinations such as Brazil and Russia.

"We have the best workers in the world here," Olson said of Saskatchewan's labour force.

"We have a tremendous advantage when it comes to people, our location and our ingenuity."

Oil, gas, coal, food, potash, uranium and manufactured products comprised almost all of Saskatchewan's exports last year.

Premier Brad Wall said Wednesday that Saskatchewan's exports have tripled during the past decade, and that the province is prospering as a result. ROSS ROMANIUK/METRO IN REGINA

Fundraiser looks to earn $3,500 for boards and safety equipment for 10 at-risk youth

Skateboarding enthusiasts in Saskatoon are looking to introduce a group of at-risk youth to a sport they say changed their lives.

Right to Skate Saskatoon is a new non-profit organization in the city and at an upcoming event, it will try to raise $3,500 to provide 10 youth with skateboards and equipment, hoping the sport keeps them out of trouble.

"It's a positive outlet for kids," said group founder Joel Fortier. "It's a very creative sport and it's a very individualized sport where you can progress at any level you want to."

He says the reason they chose skateboarding is because unlike hockey or football, skateboarding is low-maintenance and kids can participate at any given time, without constantly needing a ride to the rink or field.

"There is a certain amount of structure in skateboarding — you've got to have the passion for it and you've got to have the drive," said Fortier. "But the onus is on you and I think a lot of that will be them getting involved in the sport, but also having the right people around to motivate them."

Dan Watson, manager at Ninetimes skate shop and a sponsor of the event, echoes Fortier, saying he too feels the sport could be a game-changer for these youth.

"It's a sense of freedom," said Watson. "You don't need to belong to a club, you don't have to belong to a team, you don't need to have a coach telling you what to do — really, as long as you have a board, the streets are open."

The event called Right to Skate is scheduled for Friday at Louis' Pub on the University of Saskatchewan campus and features musical guests Lady Deathstryke, Shooting Guns and the Classy Chassys.

Mazurkewich in trouble over election spending

A failed mayoral candidate in the last civic election is headed to court for failing to meet February's campaign-expenditures deadline.

Clay Mazurkewich pleaded not guilty in a Saskatoon court Tuesday to violating the Campaign Disclosure and Spending Limits Bylaw.

The case will now go to trial on June 28.

Mazurkewich received just 604 votes in the 2012 election.

In March, he pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed imitation weapon for taking two air soft pellet guns into a bar.

He was fined $750 and had to forfeit the pistols.

Province boosts cancer care

Saskatchewan patients should expect better access to cancer care thanks to a $12-million funding increase to the Saskatchewan Cancer Agency in the provincial budget.

This raises the province's funding of the agency to $150.7 million. The agency will be putting the money toward early screening, wait times, expansion of an integrated hematology program, meeting the rising demand for treatment and drugs, and recruitment and retention of oncologists and other care providers.

Iron Lady laid to rest in a grand funeral

Margaret Thatcher. Some camped in a field to be there; mourners included the Queen and reps from 170 countries

Margaret Thatcher was laid to rest Wednesday with prayers and ceremony, plus cheers and occasional jeers, as Britain paused to remember a leader who transformed the country — for the better according to many, but in some eyes for the worse.

A sombre crowd lined the normally buzzing streets around Parliament, contained behind temporary fences and police lines, waiting to catch a glimpse of Thatcher's coffin.

Soaring hymns and biblical verse echoed under the dome of St. Paul's as 2,300 relatives, friends, colleagues and dignitaries attended the ceremonial funeral. Bishop of London Richard Chartres spoke of the strong feelings Thatcher still evokes.

The crowd thinned as the convoy swept past Trafalgar Square through the closed-off streets of central London. It seemed the 4,000 police deployed for the event might outnumber spectators.

But as the hearse reached St. Clement Danes Chapel and the brass band emerged, the ceremony began in earnest. Suddenly there were enough viewers to block the side streets and hang off every lamppost and window. The band's stirring hymns were met with applause, while the brave or tipsy sang along.

The coffin was transferred to an ancient gun carriage for the road to St. Paul's Cathedral, accompanied by a 21-gun salute.

Fittingly, there was a strong military presence for Thatcher's send-off.

"I'm here to pay my respects to the woman who gave us victory in the Falklands and rescued our economy," said ex-serviceman Tony Eustace. "She gave us belief."

Others were happier to enjoy the ride.

"We camped in a field last night to be here," said Mandy Phipps, attending with her four children. "I love these occasions; I was here for the Royal Wedding too."

National flags, bulldogs and music surrounded the service as the A-list guests, from the Queen to Top Gear presenter Jeremy Clarkson, arrived. Hardcore Thatcher fans stayed after the service too, savouring the last moments of the ceremony.

But nine days after Thatcher's death, there were signs of fatigue. "Thank God that's all over now," one spectator said as crowds melted away.

"The storm of conflicting opinions centres on Mrs. Thatcher, who became a symbolic figure — even an -ism," said Bishop Chartres.

"It must be difficult for those members of her family ... to recognize the wife, the mother, the grandmother."

A total of 410 pigs and 122 dogs were discovered earlier this week in central Henan province. It's suspected the deaths had to do with chemical factories, which have been ordered to suspend production and co-operate with the police investigation.

Boston bombing. Student snuffed out in her prime

Less than 24 hours before she died, Lu Lingzi sent an exuberant email to a professor after learning she had passed part of a major final exam.

"I am so happy to get this result!" she wrote. "Thank you very much."

Lu, 23, was killed on Monday in the Boston Marathon explosions, according to a statement from Boston University. She was a graduate student studying mathematics and statistics and was scheduled to receive her degree in 2015.

Lu was at the race with two friends from BU. One, Danling Zhou, was injured and is in stable condition, the school said.

United States on edge. Media overwhelmed with flood of news on letters, Boston bombings

America's frayed nerves found little relief on Wednesday as news emerged of a poison-laced letter addressed to U.S. President Barack Obama, while investigators endeavoured to close in on a suspect in the Boston Marathon bombings.

Agents arrested Paul Kevin Curtis, 45, in Tupelo, Miss., in connection with letters sent to Obama and a Republican senator from Mississippi. They tested positive for deadly ricin in preliminary analyses.

The Mississippi Clarion-Ledger reported that Curtis is a celebrity impersonator and an avid church-goer. He lamented the lack of prayer in schools in a recent Facebook post on the Boston bombings.

Earlier in the day, officials said they doubted the letters were linked to the bombings.

With Americans anxious for a break in the bombing case, information was being leaked to the media at a furious speed.

At one point mid-afternoon, The Associated Press cited one official as saying an arrest was imminent. CNN said an arrest had been made. Other officials shot down those reports.

Several outlets said investigators had identified a suspect from a surveillance video. CBS News reported that the bomber was on the phone when he dropped off a second backpack and that cellphone records identified the suspect. But NBC reported police had a face, not a name. THE CANADIAN PRESS

So long smartphone, hello smart watch?

You know you want it: Wearable computing devices like the Pebble smart watch and Google Glass are expected to explode in popularity over the next year, tech analysts say. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/GETTY IMAGES/FILE PHOTOS

Tech trend. Some wearable computing gadgets could have mass appeal, observer says

Using wearable computing devices like smart watches and smart glasses will appeal to consumers as an alternative to pulling out their smartphones, say technology experts. You'll be able to respond to text messages or emails and make phone calls without reaching for your phone, said Info-Tech Research Group's Mark Tauschek.

"If you've got a smart watch on your wrist or you're wearing Google Glass, you're going to get those notifications on your wrist or in your eye so you don't have to reach into your holster or pocket or purse or whatever to grab your smartphone," Tauschek said.

Smart watches that cost between $100 and $200 should have mass appeal and take off within two to five years, predicted Tauschek. "All you really need to get is one really useful, easy to use, attractive, wearable smart watch and others will follow and it will find a mass market pretty quickly."

Tax or tariff? Bike shop owner feels deceived by budget announcement

The owner of an Ottawa bicycle shop where Finance Minister Jim Flaherty last year trumpeted the benefits of his budget says he feels misled. Despite what the federal Conservatives say, they are raising consumer taxes by increasing tariffs on goods imported from dozens of countries, Jose Bray told a news conference at his Joe Mamma bike store on Wednesday.

"It was a little misleading and I think calling it a tariff and saying we're not raising taxes is trying to pull the wool over the eyes of the consumer," he said. "I feel misled more than anything." Bray's shop was the backdrop last October for a Flaherty news conference, where the minister announced measures to be included in his 2012 omnibus Budget Implementation Act.

Flaherty said then he would not raise taxes and would give small businesses a tax credit. But the Conservatives have increased taxes, said Bray, by way of the tariffs, which will increase prices for a number of consumer products, including bicycles. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CLEAN? OVER MY DEAD BODY

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

Ah, spring! That magical time of year when a single man's fancy turns to removing from the refrigerator items that are branded "Official sponsor of the Vancouver Olympics."

Yes, it's time for spring cleaning.

According to a Wikipedia entry that I just wrote, spring cleaning as a modern ritual dates back to the 1920s, with the annual cleanup at the Slinky factory in Ohio, where workers would clean the toy springs top to bottom in time for autumn inspection.

This adjectival misunderstanding led people to dust, mop and organize their homes every spring as the weather warmed, which was convenient because those sexy outfits that maids are always wearing are terribly nippy in the winter.

The event caught on and now almost everybody does it. Even I take part in spring cleaning, despite the fact that I practise a special bachelorhood religion that considers dust bunnies sacred.

Which leads to a tricky question: Why do I do it?

God knows I don't make it easy on myself. I believe in a challenge, which is why spring cleaning is what I like to call "the only time I clean all year." Less concise, more accurate.

For most of the year, I just look around as I'm leaving for the day and think, "If I died today, would I be mortified when people open my apartment?"

In other words, my place has to be so disgusting that I would feel shame from beyond the grave. If there are no creatures with eyeballs living in the apartment and no need for the gag reflex, I'm usually satisfied. So spring cleaning is, like me, kind of a big deal.

I start by dusting the dust off the duster, taking the mothballs out of the mothballs and cleaning up the cleaners. Fully armed, I tackle the household from eye level to bottom.

I even wash the dishes, instead of my usual ritual of draining the water and resoaking repeatedly in hopes that the dishes will dissolve. If anyone ever invents a water-soluble, one-use frying pan, I'll be first in line — every morning.

Tackling the bathroom is also key. Usually there are so many pairs of underwear on the floor it looks like Judgment Day came and God took up only people who were mid-orgy.

Then there's the fridge, which doubles as a Grade 4 science project missing only the Bristol board that says "mould" at the top. The vegetable crisper (total misnomer) is often vegetable soup, and the multiple milk cartons in the door are like a retrospective: "The Best-Before Dates of 2012."

But I still go through with the cleanup. Why? Basic hygiene? Goodness, no.

It's because it feels like a chance at new beginnings. I can wipe the slate clean, dust off my dreams and wash away the memory of that night I woke up on the living-room floor with a half-eaten junior bacon cheeseburger in my pocket. Like a New Year's resolution reprise, spring cleaning is a chance to "start clean."

That way, the carpet won't be dirty when it happens again.

What inspired you to make this?

It started at a young age while watching sci-fi films such as Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. Seeing those imposing AT-ATs walk across a snowscape got me fascinated with the concept of using legged locomotion on vehicles. This ultimately led me to working in the film industry within animatronics.

I built my first hexapod robot back in 2001, it was about 30 centimetres long. I guess the Mantis was a natural progression. METRO

RE: Preschoolers Who Drink Low-Fat Milk More Likely To Be Overweight, published March 25

This is a story of another industry lie like the tobacco and sugar industry.

The dairy industry has promoted low-fat as good for your health, but actually it is good for their bottom line because they can extract more cream to make more products.

The simple science is: All that is left in the milk after the "fat" cream is removed is the sugar (lactose) so when you drink this "healthy" product you are just adding more sugar to an overloaded, Western, sugary diet. The little fat left in the three per cent milk actually works to reduce and slow the sugar uptake, and adds more food value to the milk, which is healthier. One day, hopefully, all these lies will be shown: the sugar poison, the fat-free, high-sugar products.

I don't buy organic, I'm just concerned about the poor Western diet and the lies we are told. 44fourty posted to metronews.ca

One Bad Son returns home to Saskatchewan to play Bud's on Broadway in Saskatoon Friday, April 19 and at JUNOfest in Regina April 20 at The Exchange. HANDOUT

One good time with One Bad Son

Homecoming. Now based out of the West Coast, band returned to Saskatchewan to shoot in -36 C weather

BACKSTAGE PASS
Simon Hiatt
saskatoon@metronews.ca

They may have left their home province behind for the greener pastures of Vancouver, but anyone who doubts One Bad Son's commitment to Saskatchewan need only view the video for their single Scarecrows to have their opinion swayed.

They likely could have shot in Aruba or Hawaii, as drummer Kurt Dahl says representatives from their label viewed it as a "summer" song. But the OBS boys had a different idea.

"To me it always had a lone, isolated, winter sort of feel. And so obviously the first thing we thought of was filming in Saskatchewan, the ultimate winter climate." Dahl said in a telephone interview from British Columbia.

They returned home to Saskatoon to shoot between Christmas and New Year's, hoping for a mild spell. What they got was two days of shooting in -36 C weather.

"Maybe it was a blessing in disguise because we weren't acting in the video, we were freezing our asses off and that's the look we were going for, so it worked out."

In addition to emphasizing their Saskatchewan roots — something they say they are quick to point out whenever the band is mistakenly introduced as being from Vancouver — the video for Scarecrows highlights another OBS characteristic; the willingness to take a chance.

"No one (outside the band) wanted to pick that song as a single, they thought it wasn't 'active rock' enough for radio," Dahl said. "But we just had this gut feeling, and in this business that's all you have."

Their instincts paid off as the song has been a mainstay on the Canadian charts since being released and has received extensive radio play.

The band made an even bigger gamble two and a half years ago when they made the decision to move to B.C., leaving behind an environment where they had a solid fan base for one where they were relatively unknown.

"For the first year and a half we were thinking 'What have we done?' But we had that boldness to roll the dice and not know the outcome, and thankfully when the dice landed it's often been in our favour."

But Dahl acknowledges they would not have been able to achieve the success they have seen without the support of their original fans, and says the band can't wait to get back home for a pair of dates next weekend.

"That's still our core fan base and lots of them have been there since we started in 2004, not just in Saskatoon but right across the province. Without them we'd be nothing."

Thoughts on JUNOfest

One Bad Son's return to the province includes a high profile gig at JUNOfest in Regina on April 20th opening for Monster Truck.

- "We're really excited for that show. Regina's always been a cool city for us and getting the chance to open for a band like that with all the Juno stuff going on, it's going to be a hell of a party," Dahl said.

There's winning a trip — and then there's winning a trip with your family to Disney, being treated like a VIP from the moment you set foot in the airport and having a chance to win prizes that money can't buy while hanging out with on-air personalities on live television.

It's the biggest contest of its kind offered by Rogers Media, Cityline and Breakfast Television in partnership with Disney Parks and WestJet Vacations. City gave away a total of 32 vacation packages, including return airfare to Orlando, accommodations at Disney's Magic Kingdom, a $600 US Disney gift card and theme park passes.

The winners will be taking over Disney World in Florida on Apr. 22 and 23 — and viewers will get a chance to share the excitement and even win a trip.

But what makes this contest different is that winners will be given an opportunity to compete, on air, for prizes that money can't buy, said Kevin Forget, producer of Breakfast Television Toronto, adding that you have to watch the shows for details on the prizes.

The party will start from the time they check in at the airport, where they'll receive "teal" carpet treatment from WestJet, said Jordan Schwartz, vice-president of in-house productions with Rogers Media. They'll also get to experience the park before it opens to the general public, spend time with on-air personalities from across Canada and take part in live broadcasts. And, for viewers, there will be plenty of entertainment from Canadian TV hosts and guest experts.

Dreams could still come true for viewers at home, who have a chance to win a prize pack from Disney and WestJet during the live broadcasts.

When I told my five-year-old she was going to Disney World, there was stunned silence. Then a gasp. Then a party broke out in our kitchen.

Thanks to the kind folks at City, WestJet and Disney, myself, my husband, Andy, and my Bean are going to Disney World in Orlando for five days next week as part of the City in Disney event. I plan to write about some Disney tips and tricks — stories you'll only be able to find on the Metronews.ca website. OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Macaulay Culkin

Billy Ray Cyrus hints Miley's future may have achy breaky hearts

If how Billy Ray Cyrus went about writing his new memoir, Hillbilly Heart, is any indication, he's not that optimistic that daughter Miley Cyrus and her fiancé, Liam Hemsworth, will make it to the altar.

"I know as I was writing the book I wanted to keep that particular moment as open-ended as possible. I didn't know the answer," Billy Ray tells ABC News.

"They're young, they're kids. The great news is, they're great friends. They're really, really good friends."

As for their chances of seeing their wedding reception? "I don't know, I really don't," he says.

"I play it by ear and I know whatever is meant to be, that's the way it's going to happen."

It's a boy for Malin Akerman

Malin Akerman is a new mom, she announced via Twitter this week. "My husband and I welcomed our beautiful, healthy baby boy to the world this morning! Biggest joy of my life," she tweeted.

"And his name is... Sebastian Zincone.

"Love him more than life itself."

This is the first child for Akerman and her husband Roberto Zincone, who is a musician.

Paparazzi leave Culkin a sulkin'

Macaulay Culkin isn't having that great of a stay in London, if his run-ins with the paparazzi are any indication.

The former child star first seemed perturbed by the photographers' presence while checking into his hotel, the Budget Ibis. Tensions boiled over while Culkin was leaving nightclub the Haunt after joining pal Adam Green on stage, according to E! News.

Culkin reportedly launched himself at a paparazzo and began attacking him, telling him to go to hell.

It's unclear what set the actor off.

Accuser drops complaint against Elmo puppeteer

Elmo puppeteer Kevin Clash has at least one less lawsuit to worry about, as one of the young men accusing Clash of having sex with him while he was underage has withdrawn his complaint, according to court documents obtained by TMZ. This is the same accuser who first came forward about the Sesame Street star's alleged behaviour before later recanting his statement — before changing course again and filing suit last month. Clash still has to contend with lawsuits from three other young men making similar accusations.

Rihanna's Diamonds tour losing its shine

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

What is going on with Rihanna?

Rihanna's Diamonds World Tour, which kicked off March 8th, isn't going off exactly as planned.

The singer has already cancelled three concerts — Baltimore and Boston last month and Houston on Monday. Her promoter Live Nation confirmed only that the cancellations were "as a result of illness" but did not say what was wrong with the star. When she cancelled the Boston show, she tweeted fans that morning, saying: "(Boston) this is the hardest thing for me to deal with! I feel like we've been waiting on this day forever, and I'm hurt that I let you down."

Her camp is claiming "laryngitis" but the tabloid press is claiming "pregnant." If you checked out the singer's Instagram, you will see she is a connoisseur of the green stuff. So maybe if she laid off the pot? Perhaps that would help this whole "laryngitis" issue. I know it would definitely help this possible "pregnancy" situation.

7 new ways to wear denim

Jeans are the easiest thing to wear during spring's rainy season of transitional weather. We take styling tips from seven stylish everyday women spotted around the world.

KENYA HUNT
Metro World News

The idea: Polish the tomboy up

EMBELLISHED BEANIE
$25, ASOS.COM

The idea: Bring those old school high tops back

Styling tip: Lately, when we see a pair of sneakers in a fashion story, it's the neon Nike Free or primary coloured New Balance. But the classic high top (and we're not talking about those trendy Isabel Marant wedge ones) has been overlooked. Londoner Bryona Hayne's sporty look makes a good case for fixing that.

$112, NIKE.COM

The idea: Day-to-night means dressing down

Styling tip: Speaking of contrast, check out how Rajni Jacques's polished tailoring neatens up the New Yorker's otherwise badass grunge look, showing a new side of day-to-night dressing. Because sometimes, the after-work socializing happens in a dive bar and not a swanky gallery opening.

$300, TOPSHOP.COM

The idea: Take your double denim to another level

Styling tip: Like head-to-toe black or white, double denim is the perfect blank canvas to dress around. The possibilities are endless, but we especially like the idea of using double denim to show off bold outerwear and accessories the way Candela Novembre (top) of Milan does. And can you spot the tomboy and girly elements here?

$206, WHISTLES.CO.UK

The idea: Give the girly girl an edge

Styling tip: Pink, the most saccharine of colours, suddenly gets major bite when paired with boyfriend jeans and a fisherman's sweater. And let us draw your eye to the navy blue nails on Irina Lackicevic from London. Sensing a theme here?

NETAPORTER.COM

SOPHIE HULME
TRENCH WITH LEATHER SLEEVES
$805, STYLEBOP.COM

The idea: Take the wide legs out of the '70s

Styling tip: Steer clear of going too literal and disco-y by balancing the retroness of the jeans with a contemporary silhouette on top. Pay close attention to the length of Brit Kimberly Carroll's jeans. You don't want them dragging on the ground.

The idea: Put the ripped bits up top

Styling tip: We expect to see rips and tears on the legs (preferably just above or below the knee.) Give an element of surprise by wearing the distressed bits up top, pairing a ripped knit with a pristine pair of dark blue jeans the way Anouki Areshidze in Milan does here.

Red carpet ready.
Teens seeking their own time in the spotlight look to celebs for inspiration

You might as well roll out the red carpet in front of the school gymnasium or hotel ballroom and line it with parental paparazzi. Prom season provides many girls a chance to have their moment to pose.

It's likely that this year's parade of fashions will include a few starlet look-alikes. And why not?

Today's young celebrities span many styles. There's Jennifer Lawrence, who has come to awards shows dressed both sporty and sleek, and like a princess; Taylor Swift, who moves seamlessly from vintage to ethereal; and sometimes funky, sometimes artsy Chloe Moretz.

There are also Rihanna and Selena Gomez, notes Gina Kelly, fashion director at Seventeen. "You've got Selena Gomez, who's a little sweeter, and Rihanna, who's edgier. Within that range, you've got a lot of options."

JOHN SHEARER/ INVISION/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coming just off the Hollywood awards season, all the options are fresh in girls' minds, she says, and they've gotten ideas on how to put a whole package together. Lawrence, for example, wore a bona fide ball gown — and there are girls who want that — but her delicate jewelry and loose updo added youthfulness, Kelly observes.

Georgina Chapman, designer of red-carpet favourite Marchesa, is now offering a significantly less expensive version of her party looks at JCPenney under the Pearl label.

For even her older teen stepdaughter, Chapman says she felt like Marchesa's dramatic signature might have been a little too much. "You want to look vibrant. You've got that young glow, work with that!"

She hopes Pearl adds a little "more tongue in cheek" than Marchesa, with the same level of attention to details, and you'll have the embellishment and ruffles.

Mandi Line, costume designer for TV's Pretty Little Liars, encourages girls to try on as many prom dresses as possible. Then, she says, "go with your gut or you won't be happy at the dance."

"What do you want to show off? Your legs, your arms? Then look at your favourite star. You might not be like them, you might not look like them. But it's a good start for ideas," Line says.

Invite the sea into your home

It's not often that I subscribe to a heavily-themed decorating style. Although industrial-chic and hotel-style have faired wel, it's time to soften up the looks and introduce a style dedicated to water and sand. Sea-side living-inspired-decor themes are popping up, and this nautical theme might just be what jump starts us into summer.

Heat up your next dinner party with easy Thai Pork Skewers

Ingredients

- 1 pork tenderloin, trimmed (about 1 lb/450 g)

Marinade
- 2 tbsp packed brown sugar
- 2 tbsp chopped fresh cilantro or parsley
- 2 tbsp lime juice
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp grated fresh ginger
- 1 tbsp sodium-reduced soy sauce
- 1 tsp Thai red curry paste

Peanut sauce
- 1/3 cup natural peanut butter
- 1/3 cup coconut milk
- 2 tbsp lime juice
- 1 tbsp sodium-reduced soy sauce
- 1 tsp packed brown sugar
- 1/2 tsp hot pepper sauce

"This curry-scented marinade uses only a bit of Thai red curry paste, but an opened jar will keep in the fridge for up to one year," write the editors of Canadian Living in The Appetizer Collection. "Try the luscious peanut sauce on grilled chicken as well."

1. Peanut sauce: In food processor, blend together peanut butter, coconut milk, lime juice, soy sauce, brown sugar and hot pepper sauce until smooth. Pour into bowl; cover and set aside. Cut pork into 26 8-by-1-by-5mm strips.

2. Marinade: In large bowl, whisk together brown sugar, cilantro, lime juice, garlic, ginger, soy sauce and curry paste; add pork, tossing to coat. Cover and refrigerate for 4 hours. (Make-ahead: Refrigerate peanut sauce and pork separately for up to 24 hours. Bring sauce to room temperature, thinning with water, if desired.)

This recipe makes 26 pieces. RYAN SZULC/CONTRIBUTED

3. Thread pork onto small metal or soaked wooden skewers; place on broiler pan or foil-lined rimmed baking sheet. Broil, 15 cm from heat and turning once, until lightly browned and no longer pink inside, about 6 minutes. Serve with peanut sauce for dipping.

Memorial Cup. Coach Molleken methodical in practice approach with club on WHL playoff sidelines

morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

Saskatoon Blades head coach Lorne Molleken says he's confident his team is capable of a strong showing in the upcoming Memorial Cup tournament.

Molleken said spirits were high coming out of a two-week break where players got to return home after being swept 4-0 in their first-round series against the Medicine Hat Tigers.

"We believe if we play the way we're capable of playing, we have a chance and we've proven that at different times throughout the year," he said.

Molleken noted coaches are already pre-scouting teams advancing in the East, while players are focusing on staying in game shape.

"Our focus has shifted onto conditioning and a lot of drills to make sure we're moving our feet in different situations on the ice," he said.

"That's been the focus of the first few days and each practice has a different theme to it as far as team play and individual play."

"For example, one day it might be one-on-one situations, the next day it might be two-on-two and the next day it might three-on-three."

Practising for the cup

Time off welcome in Saskatoon

Being knocked out after the Medicine Hat series may have been a blessing in disguise for the Blades, as they'll be the only team in the tournament getting a chance to train without the stress of a playoff run.

"We've got some time here and that's probably where the positive is, where other teams are coming in beat-up and tired, we'll be fresh and ready to go," Blades head coach Lorne Molleken said.

Boston bombings

Heat's Allen says friend lost leg in Monday's blasts

Heat guard Ray Allen says a friend of his family was among those who lost a leg in Monday's explosions at the Boston Marathon, and that another friend owned the restaurant that employed the 29-year-old woman who was killed in the blasts.

Allen has been a spectator at the marathon several times, going back to his days with the Boston Celtics. He says his mother has run the marathon three times and that his wife has done so twice.

Allen says that if he were still with the Celtics, he likely would have been at the finish line around the time of the explosions, waiting for his mother and wife to complete their runs.
